Organizational Diagnostics

WHAT IT IS

Diagnostics gives the client a data-based description of the state of the organization: quantitative and qualitative research carried out separately for each area of the organization. The result is a report with recommendations, including the areas in which to start a change.

AT A GLANCE

Scale	organizations of 10 to 10,000 people
Result	a report with recommendations and its discussion
Confidentiality	NDA: the client's or ours
Led by	Kate Hobler

WHO IS IT FOR?

- The organization plans a change and needs to establish where to start.
- The executive team needs data in place of divergent opinions.
- The organization wants to assess readiness for change or the actual use of AI.

WHAT YOU GET

- the areas in which to start the change and the change management tools to use,
- processed data broken down by departments and levels; raw data on request.

HOW IT WORKS

1. Non-disclosure agreement and agreeing the scope.
2. Quantitative research tailored to the client's questions.
3. Qualitative research: semi-structured interviews.
